

Erasmus+ Blended Intensive Programme

Populism and the Foreign Policy of Central and Eastern European Countries in an Era of Polycrisis

The Center for Security Studies is delighted to invite PhD candidates to a summer school focusing on how populism shapes the foreign and security policies of Central and Eastern European (CEE) countries amid complex global crises.

Participants will explore three core areas: i) the themes and narratives driving populist foreign and security policy, ii) the means of communication through which these narratives are conveyed, and iii) their specific manifestations across sub-regions and countries in Central and Eastern Europe. The program fosters critical engagement with these topics through a blend of seminars, practical training, and collaborative research opportunities, culminating in a final conference and potential publication in CEJISS (Central European Journal of International and Security Studies).

 Dates: 2-6 June 2025

 Location: Metropolitan University Prague, Czech Republic

 Application Deadline: 28 February 2025

Language of instruction: English

Participants: Ph.D. Candidates

Costs: No tuition fees are charged and participants are recommended to apply for short-term Blended Intensive Programme grants via Erasmus+ (79 EUR/day) at their home institution. MUP will help to facilitate the process. Students cover accommodation and personal living expenses (food, transportation fees etc.) from their Erasmus travel grant.

How to Apply: Send your application, including your CV and an abstract summarizing your research on populism (max. 400 words): international@mup.cz
